

Radio workshops for young people

Radio provides a platform for young people to discuss issues relevant to them and their peers. The course are facilitated by professional radio producers and can be either OCN accredited or non-accredited.

Skills

Your students will learn the basic skills required to produce radio.

Subjects covered include:-

- ✓ Planning and producing a live show
- ✓ Producing show elements such as jingles, vox pops and adverts,
- ✓ Understanding and working with equipment in a radio studio
- ✓ Editing audio using recognised software such as Adobe Audition
- ✓ Live presenting techniques
- ✓ Producing a podcast
- ✓ Basics of how a radio stations work
- ✓ Making a demo and getting a job in radio

Radio production

Groups learn how to produce their own radio show. They will create jingles, record interviews and plan and produce a live music or speech-based show that can be uploaded to the web. Youth workers can also benefit from this training and can use the skills to facilitate further workshops themselves.

Live radio

Participants will have the opportunity to broadcast live or from a professional radio studio. This is a great opportunity for young people to present a positive image to their peers and the wider community.

More projects

Radio Drama - Using a mix of live sound effects and voice direction, groups create sketches and dramas for the radio.

Podcasts – produce news reports, interviews and features

Documentaries – tackle subjects relevant to your group
